The Sorrento, an 80-foot sailing yacht that Bert chartered for the summer “to entertain customers.” He had a big disagreement with the captain about halfway through the summer over the maintenance of the electronics and quit using the boat. Later, when the boat was being sailed back to the Caribbean for the winter, it was lost at sea for several weeks due to an electronics problem. In November that year, it was used as a prop for a Playboy shoot that had much better-looking people on it (and in less clothes) than it ever had when it was chartered by Bert.
